The English language proficiency standards (ELPS) outline English language proficiency level descriptors and student expectations for English language learners (ELLs). School districts are required to implement the ELPS as an integral part of each subject in the required curriculum. This document outlines the ELPS that have been designated as appropriate for inclusion in instructional materials. Since the designated ELPS are included in student materials for English language arts and reading, the ELPS are not required to be included in Proclamation 2015 instructional materials for Kindergarten through grade 5 where students are typically taught in self-contained classroom settings rather than departmentalized classes. Additionally, many of the designated ELPS are most appropriate for inclusion in teacher materials and are only required to be included in student materials where specifically indicated.

The student is expected to:	(F) write using a variety of grade-appropriate sentence lengths, patterns, and connecting words to combine phrases, clauses, and sentences in increasingly accurate ways as more English is acquired	(2) write using a variety of grade-appropriate sentence patterns in increasingly accurate ways as more English is acquired	NA	NA	NA	NA

The English language proficiency standards (ELPS) outline English language proficiency level descriptors and student expectations for English language learners (ELLs). School districts are required to implement the ELPS as an integral part of each subject in the required curriculum. This document outlines the ELPS that have been designated as appropriate for inclusion in instructional materials. Since the designated ELPS are included in student materials for English language arts and reading, the ELPS are not required to be included in Proclamation 2015 instructional materials for Kindergarten through grade 5 where students are typically taught in self-contained classroom settings rather than departmentalized classes. Additionally, many of the designated ELPS are most appropriate for inclusion in teacher materials and are only required to be included in student materials where specifically indicated.
